

NEW YORK, September 17, 2012 - Greentech Capital Advisors adds two China experts to its Advisory Council: David Ho and Edward Cunningham.

"We are very excited to have David Ho and Edward Cunningham join our Advisory Council," said Jeff McDermott, Greentech Capital Advisors' Managing Partner. "David and Edward bring invaluable sector knowledge and deep networks of relationships that will help us serve clients who are focused on sustainable infrastructure."

David Ho is Founder and Chairman of Kiina Investment, a private company that invests in start-ups in the Technology, Media and Telecommunications industries. He currently serves as a member of the Board of three Chinese State Owned Enterprises: China Ocean Shipping Company, Sinosteel Corporation, and Dong Fang Electric Corporation. In addition, David also serves as a Board Director of Pentair Inc. and Triquint Semiconductor. "As a Director of both Chinese State Owned Enterprises and U.S. companies, and an active technology venture investor, I understand the challenges and opportunities driving cross-border investments," said David Ho. "I am pleased to work with a firm such as Greentech Capital Advisors that is committed to collaboration between the US and China as they move towards a more sustainable future."

Edward Cunningham is the Director of the Harvard Kennedy School Asia Energy and Sustainability Initiative and Assistant Professor at Boston University's Department of Earth and Environment. He also served as the program officer of the China Public Policy Program at the Harvard Kennedy School, which has trained over 1,000 senior government officials in China since 1999. "As a sector specialist with detailed knowledge of the global sustainable infrastructure space, Greentech Capital Advisors provides expert advisory services to Chinese companies," said Edward Cunningham. "I look forward to working with them."

The announcement of David and Edward joining Greentech Capital Advisors' Advisory Council comes shortly after the firm announced two cross-border transactions with Asian counterparties. Greentech advised GreatPoint Energy, Inc in their $1.25 billion investment and partnership by China Wanxiang Holdings Company, LTD, the largest equity investment by a Chinese corporation into a venture-capital funded U.S. Company. Greentech also acted as Riverstone Holdings LLC's exclusive financial advisor on the sale of Seajacks International Ltd, a European offshore wind service company, to Marubeni Corporation and Innovation Network Corporation of Japan (INCJ).

Greentech Capital Advisors is a specialist investment banking firm advising companies transforming the world's energy, industrial, and resources infrastructure. We provide financial advisory services - for M&A, strategic joint ventures, private placements and project finance - to the global corporations and emerging growth companies that are driving the transition to a more efficient and productive growth economy.

Through our offices in New York, Zürich, and San Francisco, we maintain an extensive global network of relationships with investors and senior decision makers at sustainable infrastructure companies. With more experience and expertise, in addition to deeper relationships, we provide our clients tailored solutions designed to meet their needs.

More information about Greentech Capital Advisors can be found at www.greentechcapital.com.

Contact Information:

Carol da Silva - carol@greentechcapital.com